Bruisers on Dutch Island. NEWPORT, R. I., March 3, 1874.

This city has undergone a decided scare to-day, and every city official connected with the police force confessed to-night that they have been victhis morning a rumor became current that a prize fight was arranged to come off on Dutch Island, near this port, and that the "bruisers" were to be taken there by a tugboat. Sheriff Manchester was consulted, and he in turn sent an officer to a citizen who, it appears, had had a private despatch informing him of the fact, desiring the latter to send him (the Sheriff) the despatch so that he would be sure that there was something in the wind before any decisive steps were taken. On receiving the despatch he was convinced, and accordingly summoned a posse of policemen, who immediately started in pursuit. To accomplish their purpose, Uncle Sam had to be consulted in order to furnish transportation to the island. This request was granted. The revenue cutter Moccasin was steamed up and proceeded with her excited passengers for the scene of action. Determined were they to bring to justice those wno dared desecrate the sacred soil of Rhode Island by a prize fight.

Cautiously they proceeded for Dutch Island Harbor, but no prize fight was there to be seen. After cruising about in that vicinity for three hours they returned, and their chagrin and disappointment can better be imagined than described at the heartless hoax that had been practised upon them. They state, however, that a fight was in contemplation, and that they have positive proof that it will occur in this vicinity at an early day. near this port, and that the "bruisers" were to

At five minutes past ten o'clock last night fire broke out on the stage of Bain Hall, corner of Lafayette place and Great Jones street, and before it could be extinguished damaged the panorama paintings of the "Pligrim's Progress," which was being exhibited there, to a very serious extent. The damage to the building was of a trifling nature.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Charity" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre. The production on the New York stage of a com-edy dealing with modern life, which aims seriously at presenting pictures of real men and women, is an event to be chronicled with a feeling of thankfulness. The English speaking public are already the debtor of Mr. W. S. Gilbert for many valuable and interesting plays. Perhaps no dramatic author of the present day has known how to invest the stage with so much poetic interest or clothe elevated conceptions with language so noble and dignified. Recognizing the true mission of the theatre he has sought to make the stage the teacher as well as the mirror of humanity, and if any errors have been committed they at least have "leaned to virtue's side." writer, differs widely from most of his works with which the American public has been made familiar. can well imagine that society was not at all pleased with the picture. Indeed, both the author and the manager showed commendable in-dependence of popular prejudice in producing the work. It is questionable whether the full force of the cutting sarcasms against the snobbery and hypocrisy of English life can be fully appreciated hypocrisy of English life can be fully appreciated at this side of the Atlantic, where, happily, the evils which are attacked have not yet taken root and fourished in our comparatively new society.

The story upon which the play is based may be thus shortly stated. A young and beautiful woman, Mrs. Vanbrugh, has loved and sinned, but her history is a secret to the world. She is known as the widow of Vanbrugh, and at the time of the opening of the play is residing quietly in England with her daughter, who is on the point of being married. Up to this point the lady has been able to conceal from the world the true nature of her connection with the deceased Captain; but the father of her intending son-in-law, Mr. Smalley, being a bad and an avaricious old man, is not content that his son should become heir to Mrs. Vanbrugh's fortune by marriage, but is anxious to acquire it by less honorable means. We have no clew to his reason for this curious proceeding, and this is one of the weak points of the play. The whole interest hangs on Smalley Senior's villany, and there is no sufficient cause shown why a shrewd old man should act dishonestly, and very few men are dishonest without a motive. Smalley suspects that Captain Vanburgh's first wife was living when he married the heroine of the play. If he could prove this he would become possessed, as next heir, of a large property left to the lady by an Australian uncle, as Mirs. Vanbrugh. Of course this property he desires for the enrichment of his son, but as that worthy descendant of the Smalleys has asked the hand of Mrs. Vanbrugh's daughter and been accepted, the property might fairly be regarded as already within his reach. But such is the innate rascality of the respectable Smalley, whose remote ancestors are supposed to have arrived in Britain with Czesar, but whose immediate progenitor, we learn in confidence, was a brushmaker, that he ventures to at this side of the Atlantic, where, fairly be regarded as already within his reach. But such is the innate rascality of the respectable Smalley, whose remote ancestors are supposed to have arrived in Britain with Czesar, but whose immediate progenitor, we learn in confidence, was a brushmaker, that he ventures to destroy the happiness of the young people, and bring ruin and shame on the Vandrughs, in order to acquire a little sooner the coveted fortune. Success at first attends his machinations against the peace and well being of his victims, and when the curtain goes down on the third not, society, in the person of Smalley, has hunted down the woman who had loved not wisely but too well, and in an agony of grief she confesses that she had never been the wife of Captain Vanbrugh. The climax of the play is reached at this point, and though there is added on a fourth act to enable virtue to triumph in the end and to send respectable old Smalley to prison on the charge of forgery, the main interest of the story has been broken. The play, however, is a strong and healthy one. It strikes at the hypocrisies of society and more especially at the linjustice with which repentant woman who has erred is treated, even by those who have been the cause and the partners of her sins. The subject is a delicate one, but has been handled with rare judgment and skill, and though many will refuse to be converted to the practice of charity by Mr. Gibert's saure, no one can fail to be struck with the power and directness with which the cause of woman is delended. The language is pure and the dialogue at once soild and brilliant. The characterization is sharp and well defined, as though cut in crystal. It is a play of great literary merit, and every part displays evidence of careful writing. Each scene has a merit of its own, apart from its connection with the general plot, and might stand alone as a careful and intelligent study of modern society. It has a kind of interest that will take with the public, and even the critical audience who crowded to a first night's per the usual result last night at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. The house was crowded, and the accustomed apathy of a Brooklyn audience gave place to enthusiasm of the most emphatic kind. The opera was "Lucia," and the interpretation of the title rôle by Mme. Nilsson will ever be remembered as one of her most beautiful lyric portraits. Last evening her impersonation was charming, and her pure, sympathetic voice, which redects so hapless bride of Lammermoor as the librettist gives it, was in its best condition. Capoul, although the music of Edgardo at times is beyond the reach of his natural voice, seems to appreciate the exigencies of the rôle so well and acts in such an impussioned manner that he gives satisfaction where a less demonstrative tenor would tail to win applause. Maurel's Ashton is full of histrionic and vocal attraction. His nobility of expression as an actor and singer in any rôle he undertakes stands him in good stead in the rôle of the revengetul brother of Lucy Ashton. A word of praise is due Messrs, Scolars and Boy, as Raymond and Arthur, for their conscientious efforts in rôles which are generally butchered in this city. The chorus and orchestra were admirably conducted last evening by Signor Muzlo. The sextet, "Chi mi Folna," was tumultuously encored, and we cannot recollect an occasion on which it was sung with such electrical effect. hapless bride of Lammermoor as the librettist

CORONERS' CASES.

Giving Wrong Certificates-Arrest of a

On Monday afternoon Dr. Max Broeker, of Forsyth street, and another physician, were summoned before Coroner Eickhoff to explain why they had given a certificate in a case of accident it being clearly a matter for the Coroner to investigate, as decided by the Board of Health, they having rejected the certificate. Ignorance of the law was the plea of Dr. Broeker, whereupon the Coroner explained the law in relation to giving certificates and warned him to be more careful in future. The same evening, however, Dr. Broeker was guiliy of a similar violation, in giving a certificate in the case of Frederick Eversmann, who died at No. 8 Second avenue, as is alleged, from fracture or the left side of the pelvis and other injuries, caused by a fall from a ladder on the corner of Duane and Church streets. This certificate, as in the former case, was also rejected by the Health Board, and the matter referred to Coroner Eickhonf, who directed Dr. Marsh to make a post-mortem examination. For this gross disregard of the law the Coroner determined to arrest Dr. Broeker, and accordingly issued a warrant and placed it in the hands of the police for execution. The penalty for such violation is imprisonment in the County Jali not exceeding one year and a fine of not more than $500, or both such fine and imprisonment. law was the plea of Dr. Brocker, whereupon the

THE WEAVERS' STRIKE.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3, 1874. This afternoon a meeting was held of em-ployes of cotton and woollen mills in the lower section of the city, who are out on a strike for the return of the old prices paid prior to the reduction of fifteen per cent. The meeting was principally composed of females.

It was stated that the mills of Gartlett & Co., John Williams and John B. Nelson, were the only ones at present that have shut their doors, the proprietors of other establishments having acceded to the demands of their employes.

At the meeting the strikers resolved to hold out, and addresses were made by Henry Lowe and others. Mr. Lowe stated that much good was expected from the recent strike, as there was a new movement on foot to form a Union of all the mill hands for self-protection.

MURDER IN AUGUSTA. GA.

AUGUSTA, March 3 1874 A fight occurred this morning at Macon, in this State, over a game of cards, in a drinking saloon on Cotton avenue, between George Abell and John Cherry. Abell knocked Cherry down twice, and then, drawing a navy revolver, fired at Dr. then, drawing a navy revolver, fired at Dr. Crowell, who interfered. The ball struck a button on the left breast of Crowell's coat, doing no damage. He then fired at Cherry and shot nim through the bowels. Before any one could interpose Abell put the pistol to his own breast and shot himself just below the breast. He fell in his tracks, and there is no hope of his recovery. There is barely a chance for Cherry. The affair has created intense excitment in Macon, where all the parties are well known.

MYSTERIOUS SUICIDE IN JERSEY.

Yesterday morning a coach driver named August Madison, aged twenty-two years, shot himself fatally on the premises of his employer, Mr. Volk, on son had been celebrating the anniversary of his birth and went, in company with a Miss Schobe, to a ball in Meyenberg's saloon, Union Hill. He drove her home in a carriage yesterday morning and then proceeded to his daily labor as usual. Arrived at Volk's he seemed in good spirits and invited several acquaintances to drink with him. They did so, and he then retired to a rear apartment and shot himself through the side with an old pistol. When his friends heard the report they rushed in and found him lying senseless on the floor. No cause could be assigned for the deed, he having simply said in a jesting manner to his comrades, "I'm long enough in the world now, boys." He had entered into no quarrel with anybody. son had been celebrating the anniversary of his

THE PRINCE STREET TRAGEDY.

Two Italian Hatters Quarrel and Are Killed-Murder and Suicide.

The Eighth ward has been again the scene of another tragedy. Not far from the spot where the policeman Doyle shot the girl Lawier two Italians quarreled yesterday. One shot the other and then shot himself, and both died instantly. The circumstances of the tragedy are as follows:-At a quarter past seven o'clock yesterday morning these Italians met opposite No. 139 Prince street. They had a short, angry altercation in the Italian language, heard by a lady who lived opposite, and was partaking breakfast. Shortly afterwards she neard two shots fired. She ran out and saw the two men lying in the street, one on the area way and the other on the sidewalk. One of these men was named Anthony Bark and the other Peter Tarchini. Barli came to this country about two years ago, at the instance of Mr. Dunlap, the hatter, who desired to engage him for the manufacture of what are known as opera hats. Barli appears to have been an adept in this particular manufacture, and both employer and employed were well satisfied with each other. This arrangement was, however, at length disturbed by the cupidity or enterprise of some fellow countryman of Barli's, and proposals were made to him to leave ness himself. This proposition, after some little time had elapsed, was accepted by Barli, and he time had elapsed, was accepted by Barti, and he entered into partnership with two Italians named Tarchini and Sicardi. These men opened a store at No. 575 Broadway, and the firm was known as Barti, Tarchini & Sicardi, opera hat manufacturers. There is a conflict of testimony as to the relationship existing between these men, some alleging that it was peacetin and pleasant, others stating the contrary; but the testimony is uniform that the business was profitable. Whatever may be true as to the motives, it is certain that Barti, who was the head of the dirm, was either induced or compelled to dirm, was either induced or compelled to dirm, was either induced or compelled to direct the contract of the later of the Barti at the Hole tooms, No. 36 East houston street, where the de tooms, No. 36 East houston street, where the det tooms, No. 36 East houston street, where the det tooms, No. 36 East houston street, where the det tooms, No. 36 East houston street, where the det form, he has been doing business in Broome street, near Broodway, and there is reason to suppose that his meeting with Tarchini yesterday morning was not acculental, but meditated, and probably with a predetermination to carry out this dreadull tragedy. Tarchini resided on the west side of town, namely, No. 231 West Houston street, near Varick, and was going to his place of business when he met Barti, or Barti who accosted him. There are several witnesses to the shooting, and all say that previous to the firing angry words passed from one to the other. Barti, in a mimute aiterwards, drew a revolver from bis pocket and shot Tarchini in the breast, the ball passing into the body. Tarchini fell heavily to the sidewalk, whereupon Barti placed the muzzle of the revolver near his right temple and fired. He fell dead beside his lifeless victim, and a crowd speedily gathered a nollicer who had just come in with a lemale as a prisoner to see where the shooting was. A message was specifly after wards sent to the effect of the street of the station house tha entered into partnership with two Italians named Tarchini and Sicardi. Daly made a miss on a hard round the table snot and Cyrille went in again determinedly, and made 17, going out on a bad miss. Daly again failed to count, and Dion followed with 1. Some very indifferent play succeeded for a time, the scoring being about equally bad on both sides.

On the seventeenth tuning Dion went in on an easy set up, and nursed the balls up and down the left hand cushion most exquisitely, scoring 65—the best run of the game thus far. Daly played a poor game until the forty-fourth inning, when he again made a brilliant spurt and counted up 43 during the run, succeeding in a magnificent masse shot in the upper left hand corner. Dion making a miss, Daly once more took the balls in hand and piled up the points by more dexterous nursing than he had yet made in the game. During this the excitement became prodigious, and as Daly approached the score of his opponent the appliause was terrific. The shouts, clapping of han's and stamping of feet made the building shake and made Mr. Dion look very blue. It was the first really interesting moment of the game, and when the player on his intery-second point brought himself up to his opponent, the enthusiasm was delirious. He went out after a wonderful run of 22. The good humor of the audience was entirely re-established. The score here stood—Daly, 469; Dion, 349.

A BROOKLYN OFFICER BADLY BEATEN.

Officer James Stewart, of the Park Police, attempted to arrest Thomas O'Brine for disorderly conduct in the Brooklyn City Park. A number of the prisoner's friends attacked him and beat him in a terrible manner, One of them struck him upon the head with a stone, knocking him senseless. Officer Rogers, of the Second precinct, went to the assistance of Stewart and assisted him to the station house, from whence he was taken to the City Hospital. O'Brine was caught and locked up to answer.

POLITICAL.

Commencement of the Gubernstorial Campaign in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., March 8, 1874. The present political campaign is the quietest ever known here. Throughout the State there is no excitement whatever, and but little enthusiasm. The Republican State Central Committee confident that they will elect General McCutchins by a small majority, though they admit that it is possible that there may be no election by the people. Their canvass is complete 200 towns, and is about the same as that of last year. The Chairman of the committee claims that they will carry all the Senatorial districts but three, giving the democrats the Tenth and Eleventh districts, and defeating an election in the Sixth. He also claims a majority for the House.

the Sixth. He also claims a majority for the House.

At the democratic headquarters they are equally confident, and claim to be able to elect Mr. Weston by a good majority. In the Senatorial fight they expect to carry five districts and defeat an election in one other. There is a slight interest manifested by the license men and prohibitionists in the campaign, and each have presented their views to some extent in public meetings.

The republican leaders deay that Butlerism will affect to any extent their party in this State, while the democratic managers claim that it is gaining votes for them. The prohibition vote, the republicans admit, will be large, and mostly from their ranks. The first raily of the campaign was by the republicans to-night at Phoenix Hall. The meeting was addressed by Bainbridge Walleigh, United States Senator from New Hampshire, and J. F. Ela, Fiith Auditor of the Treasury.

Municipal Elections in New York State.

Municipal Elections in New York State. NEWBURG, March 3, 1874.

At the charter election held here to-day the democrats elected Chauncey M. Leonard Mayor by a majority of about 500; also a Recorder by a large majority, and two Aldermen and two Supervisors.

The republicans elect two Aldermen, a Water Commissioner and two Supervisors.

CORNING, March 3, 1874. Chester S. Cole, a liberal, was elected President of the village of Corning by 250 majority over Hiram Pritchard, a republican, who is one of the Commissioners of the Elmira Reformatory.

At the charter election held to-day the republicans elected Mr. B. Doolittle for Mayor by 100 majority and four of the eight Aldermen. The new Council will now stand republican.

GLOVERSVILLE March 2 1874 At a charter election held in this village to-day there were 1,160 votes polled upon the issue of license or no license, resulting in a decisive vic-tory of 594 majority for no license.

A grand ratification meeting is now in progress to celebrate the event, and there is intense excitement among the people who throng the

Mr. Charles N. Ross, a democrat was elected Mayor of Auburn to-day by a plurality of about 400. Two republicans were in the field against him, one as temperance candidate. The Board of Aldermen will stand as follows:—Eight republicans and six democrats. The republicans elect five of the seven Supervisors.

At the charter election to-day Robert E. Taylor, republican, was re-elected Recorder without opposition.

The democrats re-elected Frank George, City Treasurer. The Board of Aldermen stands seven republicans to five democrats.

The republicans elected lour out of six supervisors.

POUGHEEPSIE, N. Y., March 3, 1874.

ROCHESTER, March 3, 1874. In the charter elections here to-day George G. Clarkson, republican, was elected Mayor by 489 majority over his democratic opponent, Frederick Cook. Six republican Aldermen and eight democratic are elected. The Common Council will be a tie

The Board of Supervisors of Monroe county will probably be democratic. ELMIRA, March 3, 1874. At the charter election in this city to-day John Arnot, democrat, was elected Mayor by 851 majority. The majorities for the other democratic candidates ranged from 865 to 1,278. The democrats elected six out of the seven Aldermen and six out of the Theodore S. Sayre, republican, was elected Mayor by 423 majority. The republicans elected their whole city ticket, except the City Attorney.

Municipal Elections in Vermont. BURLINGTON, March 3, 1874.

The election held in this city to-day resulted in a democratic victory. Calvin H. Blodgett, a demo crat, carried four out of five wards in the city, and was elected Mayor over Lawrence Barnes, the republican candidate, by eighty-eight majority. The democrats elected four out of the seven Aldermen. M. R. Tyler, a republican, was re-elected City Judge without opposition.

A New Registration Ordered Through out the State of Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3, 1874. In the Legislature to-day an act passed both Houses repealing the election law known as Act 19 of the last session. The act repealed restored some of the obnoxious features of the old election laws. Its repeal leaves the law of 1872, which Governor Warmoth approved after the election, in force.

Both Houses also passed an act ordering a new registration throughout the State.

COMMISSIONERS OF EMICRATION.

Appointment of Committees for the Ensuing Year-The Vacant Chief Clerk's Office on Ward's Island.

At the regular meeting of the Commissioners of Emigration, held at Castle Garden yesterday afternoon, there were present Messrs. Starr, Lynch, Forrest. Stephenson, Kaulman, Quintard and Maujer Committee reported that the payrolls passed for the month of February amounted to $11,320, and the bills before them for the same time, not yet acted upon, footed up the sum of about $21,300.

he had received a letter from President Huribut advising him that he was ill, and at the same time a communication appointing the several commit-tees for the ensuing year, which are as follows:— Castle Garden Committee—George Starr, chair-man: Edmund Stephenson, Daniel Maujer, George W. Quintard, Sigismund Kaufman. Ward's Bland.Committee—Edmund Stephenson, chairman: George Starr, George J. Forrest, James Lynch, William F. Havemeyer.

chairman: George Starr, George J. Forrest, James Lynch, William F. Havemeyer.

Finance Committee—Daniel Maujer, chairman; Edmund Stephenson, George Starr, George J. Forrest, George W. Quintard.

Immediately after reading the communication Commissioner Kaufman begged leave to resign from the Castle Garden Committee, and hoped that the members would relieve him from the duties such a position imposes. Messrs. Starr and others opposed such a course, when Mr. Kaufman withdrew his resignation, to renew it at the next meeting.

others opposed such a course, when Mr. Kaulman withdrew his resignation, to renew it at the next meeting.

Commissioner Stephenson stated that the office of Chief Clerk on Ward's Island was vacant, and it was essential that the vacancy should soon be filled. He therefore nominated for the position Mr. Frank Goodwin, now employed on the Island, and hoped he would be appointed.

Commissioner Kaufman opposed the idea of filling such an important position by one so young, and not properly qualified to discharge its many duties. The Chief Clerk should speak at least three languages, besides possessing other qualifications which Mr. Goodwin had not. He did not have anything against the young gentleman nominated, but it was very desirable that the place should be properly filled.

Commissioner Stephenson thought that Mr. Goodwin was in every way jully qualified to thoroughly discharge the duties of the office, and, to cut of further debate, moved the previous question.

Commissioner Kaufman-I don't like that kind The previous question, however, was carried, but the motion to appoint Mr. Goodwin was lost, The Board then went into executive session.

SUFFOCATED BY COAL GAS.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 3, 1874. Two females employed as maids in the family of Colonel Beck, at Fort Adams, were sufficiated by the escape of coal gas from a base burning night. In the case of one of them, named Mary Daly, it proved fatal; but the other one when found was conscious, and by the urgent care of the phy-sicians hopes are entertained for her recovery. The deceased girl was eighteen years of age.

PATAL ACCIDENT. Coroner Jones yesterday held an inquest over the body of Charles W. Arthur, a machinist, employed in the shops at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He was crushed in some machinery on Monday and died at the City Hospital from the effects of his in-juries. A verdict in accordance with the facts was readered.

Druggist and Physician.—A Physicians, couplaining bitterly about dull times, went to his druggist to find out the reason why, at this season of the year, his practice was not so extensive as formerly; also to affind out what inducements his brother medico offered to attract away his patients. He was startled when his druggist answered as follows:—"Doctor, coughs and colds are very prevalent, but every one is purchasing HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, and recovers so rapidly that there is no necessity of calling in a physician. Again, the reason why that Dr. F. on —th street is having so many patients, is owing to the frankness he adopted in prescribing in every case of Coughs, Colds, &c., a bottle of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. and, inding it successful, he has concluded in Tuure that all his patients, in motivately commence taking HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR."

The druggist's advice was snapped, and the simost discouraged physician now is considered a successful practitioner.
